2. INDEPENDENT PROCESS CLAIM 9
Document D6 is considered to constitute the prior art closest to the subject matter of claim 9 and discloses (the references in parentheses are to that document):
a process for producing a composite body as per claim 1, in which at least one polyacetal moulding and at least one other moulding made of thermoplastic styrene-olefin elastomers which contains 15-70% by weight of a polyether ester elastomer (claim 1, page 3, lines 2-6, and page 4, lines 46-54) are moulded one onto the other by a multiple component injection-moulding process; the styrene-olefin elastomer is injection-moulded onto the polyacetal moulding, the polyacetal moulding is pre-heated to a temperature ranging from 80°C to just under its melting point before the thermoplastic polyester elastomer is injection-moulded thereon (page 5, lines 12-13), the thermoplastic styrene-olefin elastomer has a stock temperature ranging from 200 to 300°C when it is injection-moulded onto the polyacetal moulding (page 5, lines 14-17), and the tool is tempered to a temperature ranging from 20 to 140°C (page 5, line 15).

The subject matter of claim 9 differs from the prior art disclosed in D6 in that:

M1 a pure thermoplastic elastomer based on a polyether ester elastomer (without styrene-olefin elastomers) is used.

The present invention can therefore be considered to address the problem of achieving improved bonding between the polyacetal moulding and a polyether ester elastomer.

Proceeding from the problem described in D6, "improving the bonding of the styrene-olefin elastomer to the polyacetal moulding" (see page 2, lines 67-58), which, in addition, was solved by the use of the polyether ester elastomer, the injection-moulding of a pure polyether ester

PCT/EP2004/014562

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement elastomer onto a polyacetal moulding represents an obvious variant for solving the above-mentioned problem addressed by the application. In other words, claim 1 is characterised only by the omission of the feature "styrene-olefin elastomer", which cannot be considered inventive per se.

The subject matter of independent claim 9 is therefore not considered inventive (PCT Article 33(3)).

3. INDEPENDENT PRODUCT CLAIM 1

Since the product as per independent claim 1 is produced by the process specified in claim 9, the same arguments as for claim 9 apply to claim 1.

4. DEPENDENT CLAIMS 2-8, 10 and 11

Claims 2-8, 10 and 11 do not contain any features which, in combination with the features of any claim to which they refer, meet the PCT novelty and inventive step requirements.

5. INDUSTRIAL APPLICABILITY

Claims 1-11 are unquestionably industrially applicable.

Box No. VII Certain defects in the international application

The following defects in the form or contents of the international application have been noted:

6. Contrary to PCT Rule 5.1(a)(ii), the description does not cite documents D1-D6 or indicate the relevant prior art disclosed therein.

Box No. VIII Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

7. Claims 1 and 2 do not meet the requirements of PCT Article 6 because it is not clear whether the bracketed expression, "determined by the tensile test according to ISO 127", is claimed or not.
8. The subjects of claims 1 (line 8), 2 and 4-10 use the feature "polyester elastomer" instead of the feature "polyether ester elastomer" (cf. claim 1, line 8) and are therefore unclear.
